Accreditation

The Purdue College of Pharmacy Doctor of Pharmacy (PharmD) program is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Pharmacy Education, which acts as the national agency for the accreditation of professional degree programs in pharmacy and providers of continuing pharmacy education. You can read the 2019 Accreditation Self-Study report.

Student Performance and Career Opportunities

Our faculty and staff are deeply committed to assisting students in succeeding in the classroom and, ultimately, as professionals. Ninety-seven percent of our students who began the Doctor of Pharmacy (PharmD) program in fall 2015 graduated on time in May 2019. Close to 40% of our graduating students participated in a research project during their program.
